DEMOLAY DAY IS A GREAT SUCCESS

OVER 200 WITNESS INITIATION AND ATTEND BANQUET

FORMULATE NEW ORDER

Order of Jacques Will Be The "Playhouse of the De Molays" .....

De Molay Day was a success. Everything from the exhibition drill at 7 o'clock to the aftermath at midnight went off on scheduled time and without a hitch. As the clock struck seven the members of the drill patrol led by Captain Harry Snyder, marched out on the street and gave a twenty minutes drill on the west side of the square.

At 7:30 o'clock the initiatory work began. It lasted until 10 o'clock. Thirty-three candidates were taken into the order. After the degree work, in a speech concerning the drill patrol, G. B. Holmes said that the Masons wished to help the boys buy their uniforms and in less than ten minutes $75 had been raised for the purpose.

Edward W. Keck said that plans were already underway to build a temple for the Masons and De Molays.

At 10 o'clock all present formed a line of march and paraded around the square and down to the high school building. This parade was more than two blocks long.

At the high school a banquet was served by the girls of the Smith Hughes course. Covers were laid for 180 and more than twenty of the local De Molays were forced to eat in the kitchen.

After the banquet, Toastmaster Jesse Miller, Jr., called on Judge John M. Dawson for the first speech of the evening. In his speech the judge brought out the good that the order of De Molay does for the boy and in special ways brought forward the fact that honesty is the best policy.

The next speaker of the evening was President of the State Teachers College, Uel W. Lamkin. He paid tribute to Masonry and to the De Molays and gave an interesting discussion of the Masonic Order and its son, the order of De Molay.

At the close of the banquet the Maryville Chapter, Order of De Molay announced the forming of the "Playhouse of the Order"—The Order of Jacques. In a speech concerning this it was said that as the Order of the Mystic Shrine was the playhouse of Masonry so the Order of Jacques is to be the playhouse of the order of De Molay.

At the De Molay conclave in Kansas City last August an order of this kind was suggested but no action was taken. The Maryville chapter is to be the Mother Chapter of this order and this week the ritualistic work will be completed and submitted to the grand council for advisement.

There were visiting Masons from all over the adjoining country at the meeting last night. The I. O. O. F. hall was packed.

After the banquet the visitors were conducted to the High School Auditorium where Ed W. Keck was initiated into the order of the Mystic Swine. This was a surprise to the candidate and he took the initiation very well.

Plans are already under way for a De Molay banquet and dance to be held Thanksgiving night. At this affair the girl friends of the boys will be invited and it is expected to be one of the largest of its kind ever given in Maryville.

The following boys were in the class of candidates for initiation: Loraee Landfather, Theo Lundt, Ellis Meek, Paul Maxwell, Jarvis Bush, Eldon Steiger, Marvin Bishop, Raymond Barry, Creston Maul, Donald Davenport, Paul Robey, Glen Goodson, Fred Jackson, Frank Wooldridge, Burdett Yeo, William McDougal, James Armstrong, Oren Masters, Harlan Wray, Leonard Carstens, Cloys Appleby, Orland Ashford, Sherman Ashford, James Neidel, Theo Hieronymus, Ray Hull, Forrest Freman, Glenn Trullinger, Harold Moore, Ernest Ellis and Paul Farmer.

Springfield, Nov. 1.—The injunction granted at Indianapolis restraining the mine operators from using the so-called check-off system in mines may be tested in the Illinois courts. Leaders of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America, with a membership of 100,000, have been in controversy with the packers over the formation of company unions, which have been bitterly condemned by the union chiefs.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS AS BANQUO'S GHOST

SENATE "IRRECONCILABLES" ARE IN FEAR COMING CONFERENCE

STILL REFUSES TO DIE

Confidential Advices From Overseas Are Disquieting to Borah, LaFollette, et al

BY J. BART CAMPBELL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, Nov. 1—Senate "irreconcilables" are convinced that the League of Nations will prove the Banquo's ghost at the armament limitations conference.

Their fears and alarms have been increased by confidential advices they have received from overseas that the British, French and Italian delegates to the conference will come fully prepared to discuss changes in the League Covenant which would make it fit in with President Harding's idea of an "association of nations."

Senator Borah (R.), of Idaho, chief spokesman of the Senate element whose watchword is "No entangling foreign alliances" is of the opinion that, economically and financially, the United States is being slowly and secretly eased into the League. It is known at the Capitol that it was chiefly under British and French pressure that the recent Geneva convention of the League carefully sidestepped the moot question of world disarmament. It was decided to await developments at the Washington conference.

This, in Borah's judgment, was in line with the avowed policy of the British and French Governments to have the League wait on the Washington conference before attempting to dispose of the major world problems confronting the former.

It is no new thing for the British and French to be anxious to make concessions to the American Government if the United States were willing to be drawn into a league modified in accordance with American ideas.

Will President Listen?

The nub of the situation is, of course, how far the President would listen to the pro-League suggestions of Secretary of State Hughes and Secretary of Commerce Hoover, or how far the President would be able to persuade the Senate to agree to a modified League covenant.

Another determining factor of the situation is the historic fact that former President Wilson promised much at the Versailles conference, but was able to perform nothing when he returned home and found the Senate standing in the way of the entry of the United States into the League.

But Mr. Wilson's party was in the minority in the Senate. President Harding's party is not although it does not command the two-third's vote essential to the ratification of a treaty or an international agreement. President Harding's influence with most Republican Senators is an open question where foreign relations are involved. He was, however, able to win nearly all of them—and even some of those "irreconcilably" opposed to the league, like Johnson, of California, and Brandegee, of Connecticut—over to ratification of the German, Austrian and Hungarian treaties. They split on the Borah proposal for free tolls for American coastwise vessels using the Panama Canal, although warned by Senator Lodge that there were "compelling reasons" why the Administration did not favor it on the eve of the Armament Limitation Conference.

Senator Underwood, of Alabama, the Senate minority leader, supported the German, Austrian and Hungarian treaties, but he was unable to line

ELSIE MAE WRIGHT GETS FIRST PRIZE

KEEPS BEST RECORD OF HER WORK IN PIG CLUB.

EVELYN EVANS SECOND

Members of Club Tabulate Expenses and Receipts, Showing Purebred Business Is Profitable.

Prizes for the best kept records and stories of the work of the Boys' and Girls' Pig Club were announced this morning by R. A. Kinnaird, county farm agent. The prizes were awarded as follows:

First, $5, Elsie Mae Wright.
Second, $4, Evelyn Evans.
Third, $3, Marie Danner.
Fourth, $2, Goldie Danner.
Fifth, $1, Cledieth Busby.

The members of the club kept complete record of feed and waste fed both sow and pigs, the weights of the sow and pigs at various periods, the time spent in the work, the breeding record, sales and finally a financial statement and summary. The statistical record was followed by "The Story of My Sow and Litter of Pigs."

The record of the winner of the first prize shows that she spent twenty-five minutes a day in caring for her sow and six Chester White pigs, all of which she raised successfully. The value of the sow at the beginning of the contest was $55. The value of feed was $80.40 and the value of kitchen or other waste, $21.04. The total value of her labor she computed at $9.52. Her total expense was $165.96.

Elsie Mae sold her pigs for $137 and still has the sow, which she now values at $65. She won $14 in prize money and a life membership in the Chester-White Record Association, valued at $10. For keeping the best record, she now gets $5. This makes total gross receipts of $231, which, after deducting the values of all feed and labor leaves "dividends" from the pig club of $65.04.

Her written story of her work is as follows:

"I joined the pig club because I wanted to make some money and to learn about caring for pigs. So I went to the Real Estate Bank and made arrangements to borrow some money to buy a gilt. Then papa and I went to Mr. Harvey's sale, January 22, 1921, I bought a Chester White gilt, paying $55 for her. I named her Elsie's Choice. She was my choice of the herd.

"I wanted to raise Chester White pigs, as papa raised Poland Chinas. Then we each would know our pigs apart without marking them. My pigs were dry lot fed, and I did not use a self feeder. Mr. Heitman, one of our neighbors, let me cut alfalfa for my pigs in his field, but later in the summer they would not eat it so good. I also pulled some weeds for them. They did not seem to care for Sudan grass cut and fed to them. The pigs drank water freely, but liked milk and mouse slop better.

"We weighed them in a sack, hanging on the scales. One weighed [illegible]-seven pounds at ninety days old. Three weighed ninety pounds at ninety days old. I always carried the feed to them and fed slop in a trough. I fed corn and oats at morning and evening and shorts slop with tankage in it at noon. I increased the feed gradually as they got larger and the last two months I shelled and soaked the corn twelve hours. The oats were soaked that way, too, sometimes with milk, other times in water.

"My pigs were very gentle and expected me to rub them. They ate coal and wood ashes.

"Sometimes Mr. Kinnaird, the county agent, came to see my pigs. It pays to raise throuroughbred pigs. They are healthy and their ancestors were, too. I would like to be in the pig club again. It is a great deal of work, but I enjoyed it.

"My first prize gilt weighed 300 pounds at seven months, three days old, and the second prize boar weighed 320 pounds at the same age. They were weighed at the pig club show.

"I washed my pigs with soap suds and rinsed them in a portion of dip and water. I did this to keep them clear of mange."

A Miscellaneous Collection Awaits Claimants At Fire Station After Halloween

WANTED—Owners for three wheelbarrows, a checkerboard stand table, white bed spread, double porch rocker and a few other odds and ends. Apply at Fire Station.

Many Maryville residents awoke this morning to rub their eyes and wonder at new and strange sights in the wake of Halloween pranksters. The miscellaneous collection listed above was made by city officials and is at the fire station awaiting claimants. Other property not turned over to the officials is being privately exchanged.

The meanest trick, without any element of fun, was reported by Bruce Montgomery, in whose yard a rope swing belonging to his little girl was cut with a knife.

A wagon was taken from William Everhart coal and feed yard and the bed left on the High School yard. The running gear has not yet been found.

13-YEAR-OLD BOY KILLED BY TRUCK

OTHADLEY FRIEND BURLINGTON JUNCTION, DIES OF INJURIES.

TRIED TO CATCH RIDE

Driver Is Absolved From Blame—Death Comes as Lad Is Being Brought to Hospital.

Othadley Friend, son of Jack Friend of Burlington Junction died at 8 o'clock this morning of injuries received last night when he was run over by the big oil truck driven by Carl Gardner. He was being brought to St. Francis hospital here for an operation when his death came. He was about 13 years old.

The fatal accident occured in front of the Fred Greeneish barber shop about 8 o'clock. The boy was standing on the sidewalk when the oil truck driven by Gardner, who is his step-brother, passed with a load of boys and girls on the way to a Halloween party. Othadley ran out to the truck and attempted to jump on with the rest of the group, but when he grasped the door of the cab, it gave way and he fell beneath the rear wheel of the heavy vehicle, which passed over his hips and abdomen.

Doctors were called at once, but the boys' injuries were so serious that there was little hope that his life could be saved. Early this morning it was decided to bring him to Maryville for an operation at St. Francis hospital. The car had almost reached Wilcox when the attending physicians noticed that the boy was sinking rapidly. The car was turned around and the return journey commenced, but the injured lad died when the party was still three miles from Burlington Junction.

Witnesses of the accident absolved the driver of the truck from any blame. Nothing he could have done would have prevented the fatality, they said.

The father of the boy is Jack Friend who is employed at the Maple Hotel. The boys' mother is dead and Mr. Friend has remarried.

The surviving relatives are his parents, three brothers, James and Hugh Lee Friend of Yorktown, Ia., and Harlan Friend of Burlington Junction, and two sisters, Mrs. Mc Gaffin of Corning, Ia., and a baby sister Ludene. Two step-brothers, Carl and Ernest Gardner of Burlington Junction, also survive.

The funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the Methodist Church in Burlington Junction, conducted by the pastor, the Rev. F. E. Edwards. Burial will be in the Dawson cemetery.

A JAIL SENTENCE FOR WIFE BEATER

WILLIAM GREEN PLEADS GUILTY TO STRIKING WIFE

IS GRANTED A PAROLE

Two Clearmont Men Plead Not Guilty To Liquor Charges—Title Suits Filed

William Green, who lives near Clearmont, was fined $50 when he pleaded guilty in circuit court this morning before Judge Dawson to striking his wife. After an investigation it was discovered that Green had no money and that his family needed his support. So the sentence was made six months in jail instead and he was paroled by the court upon condition of good behavior.

Green and his wife have three children, the oldest 9 years old and the youngest about 3 years old. They told Judge Dawson this morning that they have had several quarrels. Green said everything would be all right between him and his wife if his wife's brother would keep away.

Mrs. Green's brother, Will Rogers of Clearmont, pleaded not guilty to charges of giving away intoxicating liquor and of transportation of intoxicating liquor. Earl Finnell of Clearmont also pleaded not guilty to the charge of transportation of intoxicating liquor. Both Rogers and Finnell were indicted by the Grand jury. Both of them gave bail for $500 each. Their cases were continued until the January term.

Two perfect title suits were filed in circuit court this morning. They were Mamie Cox against Joseph Leedle, and Sarah Elizabeth Thornhill against Chauncey Dalrymple, et al. A note suit by C. W. Thompson against Charles L. Wells was filed.

The case of J. F. Roelofson, public administrator of the estate of Margaret Comegys, against Leonard Whitten, was still on trial in circuit court today. Several witnesses from Hopkins are here today.

PERSHING AND FOCH SPEAK AT LEGION CONVENTION

Climax of Veterans' Gathering Is Reached as War Leaders Review Battles Past.

Kansas City, Nov. 1.—The great moment of the American Legion convention came today when Marshal Foch and General Pershing stood side by side and looked down at the heroes who fought under them.

"I cannot tell you," declared Foch, "how great is my satisfaction at finding myself amongst you gallant soldiers of 1918 to live again our glorious memories. Three years ago on the first of November, the entire American army in France took up vigorously the pursuit of the defeated enemy and didn't halt again until the Germans surrendered. One and all of you had your share in it. You may well be proud."

Marshal Foch reviewed the battles and praised the bravery of the American soldiers.

General Pershing praised the American Legion and declared the coming armament conference at Washington should be the most important ever held, as in it lives the hope of the future. Every legion post, he declared, should be an agency to alleviate unemployment, but the first thought of the organization should be in caring for the wounded and disabled.

Great rounds of cheers greeted both speakers.

TESTIMONY BEGINS IN TRIAL OF WREN

TACTICS OF DEFENSE PUZZLE STATE AND SPECTATORS.

JURY EASILY SELECTED

Defense Waives Opening Statement and Does Not Reveal Line It Will Take.

Clarinda, Iowa, Nov. 1.—Raymond (Mike) Wren, acused of the murder of his chum, Ross Hammond, went to trial in the district court here yesterday morning. Practically all of yesterday was consumed in the selection of the jury.

Wren and Hammond traveled together from Baker, Ore., in a blue racing type automobile. On Aug. 9, Hammond's body was found by Frank McKee, a farmer, on McKee's farm about a mile north of Braddyville, Iowa.

Seevral days later Wren was arrested by St. Joseph police and sheriff's department officers at Gower, his father's home. Wren made a statement, according to the St. Joseph police, in which he admitted killing Wren during a quarrel.

There has been no intimation, as yet, what the defendant's counsel will attempt to show in their plan of defense. Wren is represented by Attorney James W. Mytton of St. Joseph, Robert Frost of Plattsburg, Mo., and Homer Stephens of this place, formerly county attorney. County Attorney George A. Anderson is assisted in the prosecution of the case by W. E. Mitchell of Council Bluffs. District Judge E. B. Underwood is on the bench.

It is thought that the trial may require all of this week.

After a jury had been selected and several witnesses examined, there was still no indication this afternoon what claims would be made by the defense in the trial at Clarinda of Raymond Wren for the murder of his chum, Ross Hammond.

The jury was selected yesterday with little trouble. Prosecuting Attorney Anderson made an opening statement in which he outlined the case of the state, but the defense waived its statement, leaving both the state and the spectators in doubt as to the probable line of defense. The defense is cross examining witnesses but the questions have shed little light on the mystery.

Among the witnesses called yesterday and tday was the man wa say two men stop in a blue racing automobile in Shenandoah and ask for directions. He refused to identify Wren positively as one of the occupants of the car. Another witness was Frank McKee, the farmer in whose cornfield the body was found. Coroner Roy Harmon was on the stand today.

SAYS U. S. SOLDIERS WERE HANGED WITHOUT A TRIAL

Senator Watson of Georgia Makes Sensational Charge During Senate Debate.

Washington, Nov. 1.—A charge by Senator Watson, Democrat, of Georgia, that American soldiers were summarily ordered hanged by their officers during the World War day after day, without courtmartial or any other form of trial, plunged the senate into a turmoil of acrimonious debate, halting consideration of the pending compromise tax bill.

Challenged by Senator Wadsworth, chairman of the military affair committee, as to the accuracy of the charge, Watson accused him of assuming a supercilious and discourteous attitude and defied him to disprove the charge. Watson displayed photographs which he declared were taken of one of those gallows upon which twenty-one white boys had been executed at sunrise.

THE JAPS CLEARING FOR ACTION

The Japanese, with their accustomed energy, industry and comprehensiveness, are clearing the decks for action in Washington and will be a strong force in the coming armament conference. They will have, with delegates, attaches, newspaper correspondents and business men, about two hundred men present.

The leaders gave a dinner Saturday night to fifty American newspaper correspondents in Washington for the evident purpose of clearing the atmosphere in advance and getting a better understanding with the men whose reports from the foundation for public opinion. The speakers made haste to state that they had "come from a remote corner of the globe, backed by the highest hopes of their fellow countrymen to find means of relief from the crushing burden of armaments."

If all the countries send delegates with this purpose honestly in mind, some real good ought to be accomplished. Other speakers made a zealous plea that all their armaments by both land and sea are purely defensive and that the Japanese concept of armament is to be prepared to stop or to end war.

The fact that former President Wilson's health did not permit him to receive a call from Marshal Foch of France Saturday will be regarded as evidence that he is still a very sick man.

According to the report of State Inspector Morby he has collected taxes during the first nine months of this year on 19,992,496 gallons of soft drinks. By the time another three months is added the consumption for the year will run nearly twenty-five million gallons, about six gallons each for every man, woman and child in Missouri. Pretty soft for the drink makers and likewise for the government.

The Railroad Labor Board seems to have made a drastic order relating to railroad strikes. The order forbids rail workers ever to strike without permission of the board and states that those who disobey the order will be classed as outlaws under the transportation act and will forfeit all benefits accuring from the acts of the Labor Board. It is now up to the board to see that the railroads treat both the rail workers and the public fairly.

THE OLD HOME.

An old lane, an old gate, an old house by a tree;
A wild wood, a wild brook—they will not let me be.
In boyhood I knew them, and still they call to me.

Down deep in my heart's core I hear them, and my eyes
Through tear-mists behold them beneath the oldtime skies.
'Mid bee-boom and rose-bloom and orchard lands arise.
I hear them; and heartsick with longing is my soul,
To walk there—to dream there, beneath the sky's blue bowl;
Around me, within me, the weary world made whole.

To talk with the wild brook of all the long ago;
To whisper the wood-wind of things we used to know
When we were old companions, before my heart knew woe.

To walk with the morning and watch its rose unfold;
To drowse with the noontide lulled in its heart of gold;
To lie with the night-time and dream the dreams of old.

To tell to the trees, and to each listening leaf
The longing, the yearning, as in my boyhood brief,
The old hope, the old love, would ease me of my grief.

The old lane, the old gate, the old house by the tree,
The wild wood, the wild brook—they will not let me be;
In boyhood I knew them, and still they call to me.

Railroad Propeller.

Today in Russia an "aero train," the invention of an engineer named Makhonin, is to have a trial trip. It is described as being run by propellers operated by two internal combustion engines. The front of the train will taper to decrease the resistance to the air. This is not the first report of a train of this sort, for a story of the same kind came from Roumania a few weeks ago. The chances of such a device being successful are impossible for the nontechnical reader to determine, but it seems as if some extraordinary results might be attained in the next few years along the lines suggested. It would be strange, indeed, if the triumphs of the airplane engine should not stimulate the scientific imagination.—Providence Journal.

"Beyond the Pale."

The expression "beyond the pale"—meaning "outside the law" or "beyond jurisdiction"—owes its origin to the fact that the word "pale" is used in history to denote a circumscribed limit of authority, a definition which dates back to the time of King John of England.

This monarch divided that part of Ireland which was subject to English rule into twelve counties, and the entire district was known as the "Pale." Inside the "Pale" English law was acknowledged and obeyed, while the land outside was in an almost constant state of uproar and dissension.

For this reason there sprang up a reference to matters being "within the pale"—or managed according to law and order—as contrary to those which were "beyond the pale," or in a disordered condition.

Serious Case of Hiccups.

After suffering from hiccups for more than a week, a young man employed at the George school at Newton, Pa., had lost 18 pounds. He was admitted to the Pennsylvania hospital recently. While smoking an after-dinner cigar one Sunday afternoon he was seized with hiccups. All sorts of home remedies were tried in vain—in fact they seemed to aggravate the case. He was given water through a straw, a few drops at a time, and got no nourishment.

Dog's Remarkable Adventure.

An electric storm carried away the family dog, on a farm in Kansas. The dog was found uninjured, but very hungry in an underground ice house, which had been unroofed by the storm before the dog's unwilling entrance. The animal's hair was charged heavily with electricity since the storm and showed up brilliantly after dark.

up many Democratic Senators for them. How far his sympathies would lend themselves to whatever suggestions for an "association of nations" the conference in which he is to participate may evolve is problematical. The recent treaty fight in the Senate indicated that Underwood's influence with a number of his Democratic colleagues is negative when pitted against the element in the Democratic party represented by Mr. Wilson.

But ratification of the treaties demonstrated beyond peradventure that enough Democratic Senators are no longer susceptible to the Wilson influence to permit an almost solid Republican majority to carry out the Administration's foreign policies. Senator Underwood and the Democratic Senators who usually share his view of foreign questions in reality hold the balance of power on the Democratic side despite the swing of the Wilson element in the direction of the Versailles Treaty, and of the anti-Wilson element as typified by Senators Reed of Missouri, and Watson of Georgia, away from it.

Without Democratic support it is patent that the ratification of any international pact the President and the State Department may negotiate is impossible, but the "irreconcilables," like Borah, of Idaho, and LaFollette, of Wisconsin, are now so few on the Republican side as to be almost negligible, and comparatively few Democratic votes are therefore necessary to insure ratification.

Senate Different Now.

The Senate situation is accordingly obviously different so far as the present administration is concerned with foreign affairs than it was when Mr. Wilson presided at the White House and directed the activities of the State Department and replaced one Secretary of State with another whenever he failed to grasp the Wilsonian purpose and viewpoint.

And it is knowledge of this changed situation which is believed to have rekindled the hopes and desires of Great Britain, France and Italy for participation in the League of Nations—not a Wilson-Lloyd George-Clemenceau League, but a Harding-Hughes-Hoover-Lodge League—by the United States as a sequel to, or perhaps the direct outcome of, the Armament Limitation Conference.

It is not denied that the representatives of these nations are coming to the conference not with these hopes and desires merely as by thoughts for verbal suggestion or discussion, but in the form of carefully prepared and strictly confidential memoranda as to how far the British, French and Italian Governments are prepared to accede to structural changes in the League covenant

ARMISTICE DAY WILL BE LEGAL HOLIDAY.

Labor and Legion to Unite in Celebrating Peace Anniversary.

Jefferson City, Nov. 1.—Armistice Day, November 11, is to be not only a day of voluntary celebration in Missouri, but a legal day of celebration. This fact became known here when it was discovered that November 11 was placed among the public holidays by the last regular session of the state legislature.

Reports from all parts of the state received by officials indicate that the third anniversary of Armistice Day will be celebrated more widely than either of the other two anniversaries since the cessation of hostilities in the world war, on November 11, 1918. The celebration this year will be a joint celebration of labor and the American Legion, this action having been urged by both state and national officials of both of these organizations.

"Labor will join with the legion in making the Armistice Day celebration this year one of union and better feeling among all classes," R. T. Wood, president of the Missouri Federation of Labor, stated while here recently. President Wood said he had sent communications to all the labor bodies in the state, urging them to assist in making the day a memorable one.

Likewise, the legion officials have requested that the legion posts make an effort to have the ideals of the legion placed before the people on Armistice Day, and that the day be commemorated in the spirit of a better Americanism. The legion officials have asked that not only should ex-service men unite with the labor unions on November 11 in celebration of the day, but that ministers and other public speakers be urged to encourage a better feeling among all factions and classes at public gatherings during the week of November 11.

Prominent individuals in the state already have been called upon to address public meetings on Armistice Day. Gov. Hyde is scheduled to address a public meeting at Joplin, and has stated that he will attend the Armistice Day celebration there unless the closing of the special session to enact the bonus law prevents his attendance.

Senator Selden P. Spencer also is scheduled to speak at Joplin during the week. State Superintendent of Schools Sam A. Baker is scheduled to speak at a gathering of farmers and at the general celebration at Columbia, which probably will be held at the State University there.

Reports from all over the state indicate that all civic organizations are joining in celebrating the day. The schools also will play an important part in the parades of the day. Among the cities of the state that are making elaborate preparations for the Armistice Day celebration are: Springfield, Kansas City, St. Joseph, St. Louis, Joplin, Jefferson City, Hannibal, Moberly, Fulton, Columbia and Chillicothe.

Snodgrass, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Moore, Miss Zelma Neal and Miss Blanche Anderson. There was a mixed quartet number given in the Bedison service and also a duet by Mr. Cassity and Mrs. Robinson. A solo number was also given by Mrs. Robinson.

There was one confession in the Bedison service. Those who are to be baptized from the Bedison community will be baptized in the Maryville baptistry tonight as well as several others from the local meeting.

A group of workers went to visit the Barnard meeting last night, and rendered valuable assistance in the service. W. E. Goforth, Professor E. W. Glenn, Floyd Lunsford and Fred Miller made up the Barnard load. They sang a special male quartette number and short talks were made by Mr. Goforth and Mr. Glenn. Two confessions were reported at the Barnard service.

Dr. Kellems sermon subject tonight will be "The Dividing Line." E. C. Cassity will assist in the special music in the services tonight and a great service is being planned.

The new moving picture reel showing the Nodaway county campaign will be shown at the services Wednesday night. This film has been attracting considerable interest and when finally completed will be in demand by evangelistic conferences and associations. It has already been spoken for by the National Evangelistic Association for their Middle-west assembly to be held at Kansas City in a few months.

A Feminine Victory

By FREDERICK HART.

©, 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"What do you think of your chances?"

"Well, Mr. Cutler, I hardly know. If I can carry the Ninth I'll be all right."

"Charlie, that's a big contract!"

The man addressed as Charlie looked gloomily at the fire. He was a young man who would, at first glance, be passed as rather ordinary and unassuming; but there was something about his manner that compelled a second glance; and that second glance showed that his quiet manner really indicated repressed power. His clean-cut mouth and chin belonged to no weak character. His companion was a man many years his senior; a fine-looking man of fifty, with a white mustache and imperial.

"Charlie," continued Mr. Cutler thoughtfully, "I've set my heart on having you elected district attorney. It's a post that needs just such a man as you are to fill it; but the people aren't awake. Election's only two weeks off, and they still cling to their old traditions. Particularly in the Ninth. It looks bad."

Charles Livingston nodded gloomily. His whole ambition centered around his election to the coveted post which he sought; and not only his ambition but his heart's desire was involved. For Phyllis Cutler, the daughter of the man who was now speaking in tones of discouragement, filled his heart as his political ambition did his mind. He loved her, and was aware that she returned the sentiment; but there was no use speaking to her stern father unless he could point to a strong position honorably won. He must win that election! And yet without the all-important Ninth ward—the social center of the city—he was helpless.

And he had no social position. He had come from the country five years before and by superhuman struggles had made a success of law; in his practice he had become acquainted with Col. Hubert Cutler, and through him hat met Phyllis—met her and lost his heart to her, all on the same evening. And now he was candidate for district attorney in opposition to the machine! It was an honor; but what a disgrace if he lost! And he needed the Ninth to win. Colonel Cutler had already confessed his inability to swing that deciding ward.

The two men sat in silence. Then Livingston rose and bade the colonel good-night. As he was passing out through the entrance hall he heard a light step behind him and a voice that he knew and loved called softly:

"Charlie!"

"Yes, Phyl?" He allowed some of his discouragement to creep into his voice.

"Charlie, I heard all that you and daddy said. Is it so important to carry the Ninth ward?"

"It's vital, dear, and if it isn't done I won't be elected, and I can't ask your father for the thing I want so much."

The girl in the dim hallway kissed him. "Don't be discouraged, dear. If daddy won't have you unless you're district attorney, why we'll just have to make you district attorney, that's all."

"But, Phyl!"—he smiled, in spite of his discouragement, at her impulsiveness—"I can't get any influence in the Ninth. The machine has prevented your father—the only one I know in that ward—from using his influence. He's helpless, and so am I. I must make the best fight that I know how—that's all anyone can do."

"Charlie, dear, don't be discouraged. It'll all come right—just you wait!" And with these words and a parting kiss she was gone.

But as election time approached Charles Livingston was forced to confess to himself that all was coming far from right. His standing and personality assured him an even break throughout the city except in the fatal Ninth ward. There there would be just enough against him to swing the election to his opponent. He went through the work preceding the momentous day mechanically, and when election day itself came round he set himself to watch the returns with stoical resignation.

He was in his office at 9 that night, having eaten nothing since breakfast. His faithful secretary and a few friends were with him. Most of the returns were in, and the results showed what everybody knew—that the Ninth would swing the balance one way or the other. His secretary turned to answer the telephone.

"Here comes the Ninth, chief!" he cried in a shaking voice.

"And here goes our chance," replied Livingston. But even as the words were on his lips, the secretary uttered a cry of triumph. "Chief! Chief! You carried the Ninth by 1,800! We win! We win!"

The shock of the unexpected words threw Livingston off his mental balance for an instant. When he recovered himself he heard wild footsteps on the stairs and a great shouting in the streets. The city was celebrating his election and his friends were rushing to congratulate him. He had won!

Very late that night, when the last well-wisher had retired and the last rocket had sputtered and died, Livingston went into the room where he had before consulted with Colonel Cutler. He had come to the Cutler house to receive his friends, as the colonel had invited him, as his own office was too small. Now that his battle was over he wanted his reward.

"Well, my boy, I don't see any objection if Phyllis doesn't," said the colonel. "You won your victory and you deserve her. To tell you the truth, I didn't think you'd do it, for the Ninth seemed dead against us. I couldn't stir to help you. I'd give something to know what swung it your way."

Into the room there burst Phyllis—a laughing, a happy Phyllis.

"Oh, daddy, I was listening again. I'm so glad you want Charlie as much as I do. And I'm so happy! And—listen." She drew the two men confidentially to her. "I carried the Ninth myself."

"What?" Colonel Cutler could hardly believe his ears.

"Yes, I did. You men were helpless—I knew that—but don't forget that we women have votes and influence—and every girl in the Ninth is a personal friend of mine! Social position does help, sometimes. I talked to them and convinced them that Charlie was the man, and they voted for him and made their men friends vote for him. That's all."

"Oh!" Colonel Cutler's voice was amazed. "And what arguments did you use? Did you tell them what a wonderful thing it would be for the town and all that sort of thing?"

"I did not! I told them—I told them that Charlie and I couldn't get married unless he was elected—and that settled it!"

ONE OF EARTH'S OLD STORIES

Almost All Peoples Have Had Some Legend Concerning "the Man in the Moon."

The story of "the man in the moon" is very old. Nearly everyone the world over knows of the good-natured old gentleman who watches from afar by night to see that all goes well on this globe. In many pictures the moon is to be seen with a bread, smiling face looking down on earth.

The presence of "the man in the moon" was accounted for by the Chaldeans, Egyptians, Greeks and Romans with different stories. All the stories, however, agreed in that the man was banished to the moon for unbecoming conduct on earth. But he evidently didn't object to the change in abode. On the contrary, his smile would seem to indicate that he was highly pleased with his new surroundings. And he's still smiling. The moon must be a good place to live on. But maybe the old gentleman smiles because of what he sees. Who wouldn't?

The most modern story, though it is hundreds of years old, is that of the old man who went to a forest to collect wood for his fire. It was Sunday, but still he needed warmth. An angel met him returning with his bundle on his shoulders, and asked him if he had forgotten it was Sunday, when all men should rest. The weary old man replied that Sunday and Monday were alike to him, as he had to work every day to feed and warm himself. The angel said that as he could not observe Sunday on earth he should observe "Moonday" in heaven forever. So now the man in the moon is still seen on a clear night, with the fagot of wood on his shoulder.

United States Embassies.

A glance at the names of the few countries where the United States minister is appropriately installed in his official mansion betrays a rather eccentric choice. Instead of London, Paris, Rome, we find diplomatic residences in Bangkok, Pekin and Morocco. The legation at Pekin is particularly creditable, being of substantial masonry and placed in a spacious compound. That so worthy a reservation should have been acquired in the heart of Pekin might strike the traveler curiously. When did congress become so generously well disposed toward our diplomat in China? The rather shame-faced answer is that we never bought it. In the boxer rebellion of 1900, United States marines occupied that particular piece of territory, and, in a sense, they have occupied it ever since.—Terressa Long in World's Work.

The Millennium.

Millennium is a term applied in theology to the thousand years during which Satan will be bound and the martyred saints live and reign with Christ—Revelations 20:2-3. This long triumph is to be preceded by the decisive victory of Christ over the adversary, and followed by a general resurrection and the temporary release of Satan; then comes the last judgment and the new heaven and new earth—Revelations 20:21.

Attempts to fix the date of the advent, the second coming, the dawn of the millennium have been proved by lapse of time to have been failures. Some of the dates that have been fixed for the beginning of the millennium have been 1785, by a man named Stilling; 1836, by Bengel; 1843, by Miller; 1866, 1867 and 1868, by Dr. Cumming.

ITS FIRST PRESENTATION IN MARYVILLE NEXT WEEK

"The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" By Ibanez At The Empire Theater

The screen version of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," that remarkable novel by Vicente Blasco Ibanez which has been read by over 10,000,000 people in the United States alone, will have its first presentation in Maryville at the Empire Theater, on November 7, 8 and 9.

Over $1,000,000.00 was spent and it took over six months to produce. Upwards of 12,000 persons were engaged besides the more than 50 principals. More than 125,000 tons of masonry, steel, lumber, furniture and shrubbery-in access of the materials used in the Woolworth Building New York—were used in constructing the massive settings. A costume factory was erected on the Metro Studio grounds for 'dressing' the production. Two machine shops were incidentals of the other building operations. More than 500,000 feet of raw film was exposed in the taking of the pictures, which when shown on the screen does not exceed 11,000 feet. Fourteen cameramen were employed to 'shoot' the big scenes from every angle, and Rex Ingram, the Director, at times had fourteen directors assisting him. It required weeks to weed out and assemble the completed scenes from the 85 miles of film exposed. The mere running of 500,000 feet of film through a projection machine at the rate of sixty feet a minute, consumes 18 days of 8 working hours each. Several new mechanical devices for special photographic effects, for which patents have been issued, were used for the first time in taking the picture. A complete telephone system was installed for the use of the director while handling some of the great scenes. He was in constant touch with his assistants, scattered on posts over several miles of terrain. A collection of art treasures from galleries and private sources valued beyond price was used in dressing the handsome interior settings. The insurance alone on these works of art was $37,500.00.

Water—When and How Much

Hundreds of batteries die of thirst every year.

Not because their owners didn't know water was necessary.

Not because they didn't know the neglect was shortening battery life and costing them money.

But simply because they overlooked it—hadn't the distilled water handy or didn't know just how much to put in.

We can't do your remembering, but we can take all the rest of the job off your hands. Drive around anytime and ask us to see if your battery needs water.

WILL GIVE ADDRESS ON NEW EMPHASIS ON ORAL SPEECH

Prof. Harry A. Miller Says Demand Cannot Be Filled For Teachers Of Public Speaking

There is no greater field for those who enter the teaching profession today than that of instructor of oral English, according to Prof. Harry A. Miller, head of the department of public speaking of the State Teachers College. The College is never able to supply the demand in this branch and the teachers who qualify are assured of good salaries.

This will be the theme of an address which Mr. Milled will give this week before the annual meeting of the Missouri State Teachers Association at St. Louis. He will speak on "The New Emphasis in Oral Speech."

"The day is coming, not immediately in Missouri, but already in some states," says Mr. Miller, "when departments or at least part of the department of English, will be devoted to oral speech in high schools. We have been trying to vitalize every thing else; it seems to me it is time to vitalize English and literature."

Mr. Miller has written to Sam A. Baker, state superintendent of schools, asking his aid in furthering the movement for greater emphasis on oral speech, and has received the superintendent's assurances that he will receive his active support.

In the high school at Plattsburg, there are more students interested in debate than in any other school activity, Mr. Miller said. Maryville High School is one of the schools which is paying greater attention this year to oral English in its various phases.

Mr. Miller is the author of a series of articles which are being published in the Missouri School Journal. In the November issue, he writes on "The Human Voice." In October his discussion was on "Silent Reading for Thought-Getting," and in September he discussed "Fundamental Problems in Reading."

Next Sunday afternoon, Mr. Miller will go to Maysville where he has been asked to repeat his lecture on "The Glory of Man—Woman," at the county convention of the Dekalb County Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

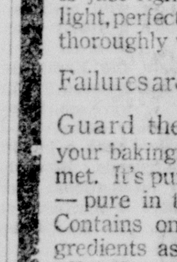
THIS YOUNG MOTHER

Tells Childless Women What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did for Her



Millston, Wis.—"I want to give you a word of praise for your wonderful medicine. We are very fond of children and for a considerable time after we married I feared I would not have any owing to my weak condition. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now I have a nice strong healthy baby girl. I can honestly say that I did not suffer much more when my baby was born than I used to suffer with my periods before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound years ago. I give all the credit to your medicine and shall always recommend it very highly."—Mrs. H. H. JANSSEN, Millston, Wisconsin.

How can women who are weak and sickly expect or hope to become mothers of healthy children? Their first duty is to themselves. They should overcome the derangement or debility that is dragging them down, and strengthen the entire system, as did Mrs. Janssen, by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and then they will be in a position to give their children the blessing of a good constitution.

VARIOUS TONGUES IN BAGDAD

Pupils at Jews' School Are Taught English, French, Arabic and Persian Languages.

Most of the public scribes in Bagdad were either Armenians or Jews, both of whom are natural linguists. Many that I ran across near As Serai mosque and in Zazim Pasha street, close to the government buildings and the law courts, knew at least a half dozen languages, writes Roland Gorbold, in Asia.

It is not difficult to acquire that number in Bagdad itself. When I visited the Jews' school, the masters put their pupils through their paces by having them recite their lessons in English, French, Arabic and Persian. French has been much used in the city for social and even business purposes. The tickets to the German Bagdad railway were printed in Arabic and French—not German. With the advent of the British expeditionary force, signs in English as well as French began to appear over the shops in New street.

I laughed at some of these absurd legends and sighed over them too. They were as incongruous as the cinema houses and the watering cart labeled "Bagdad Municipality." I never really liked New street. Though it was a necessary and admirable achievement, it did not appeal to the imagination.

THE GOOD OLD HYMNS.

There's lots of music in 'em—the hymns of long ago,
And when some gray-haired brother sings the ones I used to know,
I sorter want to take a hand, I think of days gone by,
"On Jordan's stormy banks I stand and cast a wistful eye!"

There's lots of music in 'em—those dear, sweet hymns of old,
With visions bright of lands of light, and shining streets of gold;
And I hear 'em ringing—singing, where mem'ry, dreaming, stands,
"From Greenland's icy mountains to India's coral strands."

They seem to sing forever of holier, sweeter days,
When the lilies of the love of God bloomed white in all the ways;
And I want to hear their music from the oldtime meetin' rise,
Till "I can read my title clear to mansions in the skies."

We never needed singin' books in them old days—we knew
The words, the tunes of every one—the dear old hymnbook through!
We didn't have no 'trumpets then, no organs built for show,
We only sang to praise the Lord, "from whom all blessings flow."

An' so I love the good old hymns, and when my time shall come—
Before the light has left me, and my singing lips are dumb—
If I can hear 'em sing them then, I'll pass without a sigh
To "Canaan's fair and happy land where my possessions lie."

STRANGE MANIA FOR DEATH

People of Russian Village Commit Suicide in a Body, and in Peculiarly Horrible Form.

A case of mass suicide is reported from the village of Opatovo, Russia, in the Tamboff province, where the peasants to the number of more than 300, assembled together, men, women and children, in a spacious wooden bathhouse. Doors, windows and other apertures were hermetically sealed and nailed up. In the cellar firewood saturated with petroleum was in great quantities. Fire was set to the building. Everybody in the building perished in the conflagration, if not suffocated previously by the fumes. All around the building armed guards had been left, so that the dreadful sacrifice should be carried out undisturbed. When the awful thing was consummated the guards shot each other. A few men lost their nerve at the last moment and survived to tell the tale. This scarcely believable incident takes us back a long way. Mass suicide is not unknown in the history of Russia. Brought to despair by administrative persecution or to escape famine and epidemic, entire villages have committed wholesale suicide. Often this was the result of religious fanaticism. Peter I, who was somewhat Bolshevist in the enforcing of his reforms, was met in northern Russia by numerous conflagrations involving hundreds of deaths. As late as the reign of Alexander III a case occurred in the south when a crowd of fanatics allowed themselves to be buried alive by their religious teachers.

Bulgaria Has Queer Taxes.

The peasants are now firmly established in power in Bulgaria and legislative bodies, both state and provincial, in which their representatives are in the majority, are engaged in transferring the burden of taxation to the shoulders of the despised city folk.

The district council of Roustchouk has evolved the following taxes which it styles "American":

For carrying a parasol 50 levas, (nominally worth 19 cents each), yearly; for wearing skirts more than eleven inches above the ground or silk stockings, 500 levas; for wearing gloves between April 15 and September 15 without a doctor's certificate, 200 levas; for wearing jewelry, 300 levas; for keeping pet dogs, 500 levas; for use of walking canes by persons less than fifty years old in good health, 100 levas; for wearing shoes with tops exceeding eleven inches in height, 200 levas; for wearing fur tippets or muffs, 500 levas, and for using a baby carriage in cities, 200 levas.

Child's Call Reached Mother.

Although she has no knowledge of the occult or thought transference a mother heard the cry of her child, nine miles away. The woman together with her husband was sent to jail in Chicago, because they were unable to produce a note for $700, necessary to the settlement of an estate. A month dragged by and there was no one to care for the three children, six, four and two years old. Social service workers finally took them to an orphan asylum. Henry, four, became ill and was taken to the isolation hospital. At about the same hour his mother, unaware of what had been done, became hysterical in the jail and declared her child was dying and calling for her. Jail authorities thought her demented and transferred her to the jail hospital. Social service workers went before the judge the next day and told him all three children would die unless their mother was restored to them, and he ordered her immediate release.

Water Needs of Dahlias.

As a general rule dahlias should never be watered. With good cultivation, enough moisture will be found in the soil to stimulate the roots' growth. In seasons of protracted drought, if they show any signs of wanting water give it freely; enough to penetrate a foot below the surface. Superficial watering is worse than none at all and this applies to other plants as well. More damage is done by surface watering than when none is given.

POPULAR TENOR TO SING A DUET WITH HIMSELF

Rhodes Music Shop Will Present Harvey Hindermyer and Dann Sisters Trio in Concert.

The Rhodes Music Shop will present Harvey Hindermyer, the popular tenor, and the Dann Sisters Trio in a recital at the First Christian church on next Monday evening.

Following his marked success in his recital at Aeolian Hall, New York City, Mr. Hindermyer's engagements in concert throughout America have been frequent and always satisfactory. He has a glorious tenor voice, wide range and dramatic qualities. He will include in his program here several southern songs which he interprets extremely artistically.

The Misses Dann are three charming young ladies of marked musical ability. Their charming personalities, combined with their unusual musical talent, make them favorites wherever they appear.

It is reported that Mr. Hindermyer, at this recital, will attempt the seemingly impossible feat of singing a duet with himself.

Rhodes Music Shop refuses to divulge just how it will be done, but predicts a pleasant surprise for all who attend.

Quaint Little, Publication Says the Earth Is Flat

Macon, Mo., Nov. 1—Those who have read the recent stories about Overseer Voliva of Zion, Ill., laying down the doctrine that the earth is flat, may be interested to know that in 1896 there was published in South Dakota a quaint little magazine devoted to the advocacy of that theory. Orlando Ferguson was the editor, and his publication was called the Square World. There were several Missouri subscribers.

Ferguson went for into the theory. A Macon citizen has a copy of the Square World issued in the free silver campaign of 1896. These extracts will show Ferguson's reasons for believing the earth is square and flat, and not round, as Columbus and other navagators decided it was:

Question to the Editor: Why does the needle of the compass always point north and south?

A. The Globe philosophers tell us it is the magnetic stone at the poles that draws the needle. I say there is no north pole or south, but it is caused from the great bodies of ice north and south, and which magnetize all railroad tracks running north and south. The first time you are on the Illinois Central, or any other road that runs north and south, whet your knife on its rails and you will find that it will be magnetized enough to pick up a needle. Rails running east and west won't magnetize your knife blade.

Answered "Globe Theorists"

The editor, to his own satisfaction, demolished the "globe theorists," who argue as follows:

"1. When a ship goes from port the hull disappears first, and the last seen is the mast and sail.

"2. When the earth passes between the sun and moon, its shadow on the moon is circular.

"3. Men have been around the world."

"The first can be met with philosophy and by experiment with a telescope," he said. "Everyone knows that near the surface of the vapor rising from water is very dense and hence it hides the hull of the vessel before it does the mast.

"The second does not prove anything except to those who take the shadow for substance.

"The third is easy. Suppose your draw a large circle in a room, and that someone carries a light around that circle. Let the circle represent the equator and the light the sun. If you follow the light you are going west and you will come back to where you started. It is the same in going around the world. You only go around a large circle on top of it. No man has gone around the world or will go."

"Globe theorists" are asked to answer this:

"Why is it that on the seventy-eight parallel there are reindeer, elk moose, bear, wolves, squirrels, geese, ducks, gulls and 108 kinds of shrubs and vines, while on the fifty-fourth parallel south there is not a living bird or animal to be found and not a shrub enough to make a toothpick?

Advances Argument of Distances

"Why is it that there can't be a place found south of the equator that one can sail around the world in less miles than on the equator? Figure the distance on the forty-eighth parallel north from Cape Horn to Port Jackson, Mich., etc., and you will find that it is more than thirty-two hundred miles around. When it should be, according to the globe idea only about seventeen hundred miles?

"Why is it that one can see objects one hundred miles away on the sea, when it would be impossible to see an object of any kind the distance of ten miles on land unless you or the object were elevated sixty-six feet?

"Why is it that part of the stars are traveling east, part south, part west and part north, as they do, if the earth were turning over from west toward the east at the rate of 1,042 miles an hour?"

Ferguson's most dramatic test was the shooting of a cannon ball straight up in the air. He says the ball lit approximately where it started, which would not be true if the earth were moving with the enormous speed ascribed to it by the "globe theorists."

The "square world" adherents believed that wars, religious dissensions and most of men's troubles were due to the popular "misconception" of the world's formation.

WHY SHE FAILED TO REDUCE

Patient Evidently Had Not Properly Understood the Orders Given Her by Her Physician.

The woman who sat in the physician's consulting room was certainly stout, and her reason for being there was that the man of medicine might prescribe some course of treatment which would reduce her corpulency.

After some consideration the great man drew up a dietary, and instructed her to report to him in a month.

At the end of that time the doctor saw her again, stouter than ever.

"Are you sure you ate what I ordered?" asked the physician, aghast.

"Everything!" answered the patient. His brow wrinkled in perplexity.

"And nothing else?"

"Nothing whatever, doctor—except, of course, my ordinary meals."

MOST DREADED SEA MONSTER

Octopus More to Be Feared Than That Enemy of All Swimming Things, the Shark.

Can you imagine a snail so big and so powerful that he can overcome the strongest man?

His name? Why, the octopus, that fearsome monster whose eight long arms, covered with powerful suckers, can enfold and hold fast the strongest human swimmer or the fiercest and most active fish. The octopus is a huge snail, whose shell is contained within his body.

Normally he lives at the bottom of the sea, thrusting his soft pulpy body into a hole in the rocks, and allowing his tentacles to wave to and fro in the water in search of any luckless prey that may come their way. If one of his arms touches anything living, it adheres to it immediately. First one arm and then another is wrapped around the struggling thing until it is held so fast that it is incapable of movement. Then the tentacles contract and bring their captive to the beaklike mouth.

The octopus can move through the water at an amazing speed. He does this by filling his body with water, and then squirting it out violently. If pursued by an enemy he throws out a kind of smokelike screen by discharging the contents of his sepia-bag.

Milk as Glue.

Fancy using milk as glue!

The milk does not come from the cow, but from a wonderful tree called the cow-tree. But, for all that, it is quite as pleasant to drink as the milk we get from the dairy.

The tree is one of the largest to be found in the dense forests of Brazil. Its bark is deeply scored, reddish and ragged.

Cuts are made in the trunk to allow the milk to flow, but a supply can be obtained equally well from one which has been cut down for some time.

A traveler had some of the milk drawn from dry logs which had been standing many days in the hot sun. He found it pleasant with coffee. It soon thickened to a glue, and often he saw the natives use it to cement broken crockery.

NO FIXED RULE

"What is requisite to make a song popular?"

"Hard to tell. Sometimes a song gets so popular that it becomes unpopular."

The Glass Plumber.

The introduction of the vacuum-tube light has brought into existence the new trade of "glass plumbing." The glass tubes, in which the light is produced by an electric current flowing through a gaseous conductor, are an inch and three-quarters in diameter, and are put up in lengths of about 8½ feet, and hermetically sealed in place. For the purpose of this work a set of glass-blowers' instruments has been invented, including cutting tools, blowers and hand torches, and experts perform the necessary operations with surprising rapidity.

Baptized at Historic Site.

The oldest Christian site in the world was the scene of the baptism of an English baby by an Anglican chaplain. The permission of the orthodox patriarch of Jerusalem had to be obtained. The site is that on which stands the Church of the Nativity at Bethlehem, and this is the first recorded instance of an English child being baptized there.

BE IT EVER SO HUMBLE.

Don't you know that you are married?
Don't you know you've got a wife?
Will I have to keep on nagging you
The remainder of my life?
Put that paper down, you coward! You coward!
You can read it on the train.
What's that smell? (Sniff, sniff.) So,
You've been brewing beer again.

Have you no consideration
For my feelings? Don't you think
It's a rotten mad example
For the children when you drink?
Have you put the ashcans outside?
Where's my kitchen butcher knife?
Put that paper down! ! ! Stop swearing! !
And remember, I'm your wife.

Do you think it's elevating
When the children hear you swear?
Can't you please improve your language,
Or have I that, too, to bear?
And the drain pipe from the washtubs—
Have you fixed that yet? Or will
The Day of Resurrection
Find me asking you that still?

Don't you ever pay attention
To the little things I ask?
You know how hard I work for you—
How difficult my task.
There's the matter of the clothes line—
And my oil can, where is that?
How can I do the washing
With the cellar one large vat?

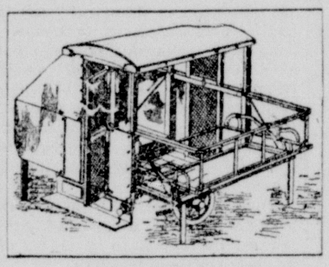
SUMMER HOTEL ON WHEELS

Ingenious Idea Will Be Appreciated by Those Who Are Fond of an Outdoor Life.

It is a vehicle of light weight and apparently simple construction that is hauled over the roads behind an automobile. The inventor, Charles E. Hancock, of Liberal, Kan., calls it a sleeper trailer.

At its corners are four hollow posts, into which smaller posts are telescoped in such a way that by turning a crank (which operates a cable on a drum) the frame holding the canvas roof can be elevated to double its ordinary height.

The sides thereupon swung outward provide two wide beds, which at night are covered and concealed from view by canvas flaps suitably buttoned on.



Traveling Hotel.

Thus the trailer affords sleeping quarters for four persons, with advantage of perfect privacy.

The affair is in short a good-sized bedroom, on two wheels, expanding vertically and laterally when wanted for sleeping use, and in the morning readily collapsed by lowering the top to half-height and folding the pair of double beds inward. At each end (for ventilation) is a screened door, the upper half of which folds over horizontally and out of the way when the canvas roof is lowered.

The door at the rear end opens upon a step, for entrance or exit. Four stout foldable legs support the trailer at night. A particular object sought is compactness, in order that the vehicle, reduced to smallest possible compass, shall pass over mountain trails without suffering injury from limbs of trees or other such obstructions.

The object of elevating the canvas roof is to afford plenty of head room. The complete canvas cover protects the automobilists when seeking refuge in the trailer in stormy weather.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Crippled Dogs Survive.

Two dogs with only two feet apiece belong to a New Brunswick farmer. One of the dogs had his hind legs cut off by a mower. When in a hurry the dog would gather up its hind parts and run along for eight or ten rods at an amazing speed, and without touching its stubs to the ground. The other dog used to follow a plow, and lost the use of two legs for some days. The crippled legs being foreleg and hindleg on the one side would seem to make progression impossible. However the poor animal followed the plow as usual on its two good legs for one morning, but was so tired at noon that he did not try it again.

Remarkable Bricks.

Bricks that float are made from an earth found in Denmark, which is impregnated with the fossilized remains of diatoms, a very minute form of life. Brought to Colchester, Eng., the earth is baked into bricks, which are said to be fireproof and soundproof.

Another novelty is the Frewen cavity brick, 1,800 of which take the place of 20,000 ordinary bricks. The hollow spaces in these bricks are linked in every direction, thus providing constant circulation of air through the walls of the house.

Dead Man Appointed to Office.

Citizens of Milford, Conn., forwarded a petition to Governor Lake for the appointment of a "live" man as harbor master for the district. The governor recently reappointed Alonzo Burns as harbor master. Burns has been dead a year and his name appeared on the list through an oversight.—Exchange.

Eye Teeth This Child's Specialty.

A nine-month-old boy at Plaster Rock, N. B., has cut two eye teeth and has not another tooth in his head. The child is reported to be perfectly healthy and normal in every other way.

The Meanest Trick.

Lyria, O., Nov. 1.—A bank here refused to accept a scrap of a newspaper, cut the size of a bill. The piece of paper was given to a blind man, who made change, thinking it was a $2 bill.
